2025 Annual Report

| Letter from the Board Chair

Fiscal Year 2025 in Review

Howdy,

As chair of the board, it is my great honor to share with you the Jackson Hole Land Trust’s 2025 Annual Report — a reflection of a year marked by extraordinary conservation achievements, thoughtful community engagement, and a steadfast commitment to protecting the open spaces that define Northwest Wyoming.

This year, we celebrate the permanent protection of 841 acres of ecologically, agriculturally, and culturally significant lands across our service area. Each of these projects is a testament to the power of collaboration and the deep, shared values that unite our community.

In the heart of Jackson, the R Park Capital Campaign has brought renewed vision and vitality to a cherished community open space. Thanks to generous support, this campaign will enhance public access, expand ecological restoration efforts, and ensure that R Park remains a welcoming place for all.

South of town, the Munger Mountain Recreation Lease represents a milestone in our efforts to balance access and conservation. This innovative partnership ensures long-term recreational access while safeguarding critical wildlife habitat — a model we hope to replicate in years to come.

In the Green River Valley Program, we successfully conserved two vital properties: The Cutoff, 80 acres of prime open space along a key wildlife corridor, and Boulder Draw, an expansive 400-acre property rich in habitat diversity and ranching heritage.

Our Park County Open Lands program saw the protection of three unique properties in Park County. These include the 132-acre Sage Creek Wetlands, home to sensitive wetland ecosystems; the 145-acre Ole Wiley easement, which offers both scenic and ecological value; and Patchwork Place, a vibrant 84-acre mosaic of agricultural land and habitat in need of lasting stewardship.

These projects represent far more than numbers. They embody our mission to protect the iconic landscapes of Northwest Wyoming, to honor the legacy of working lands, and to ensure that future generations can experience the beauty and wildness that make this region unlike any other.

None of this would be possible without you — our community of landowners, donors, partners, and advocates. On behalf of the entire board, thank you for your continued trust and support. Together, we are safeguarding the landscapes that sustain us all.

Sincerely,

Cody Lockhart
Chair of the Board

New Board Faces

"I am thrilled to join the board and help with its expanded Program areas, especially Wind River. The Jackson Hole Land Trust is a hugely important organization for Northwest Wyoming. The need for ecosystem-wide protections for undeveloped land and wildlife migrations could not be more critical at this moment in time."
- Budd Betts

"The founders and early members of the Jackson Hole Land Trust were heroes to me and their work was inspirational. Now the organization is reaching out into other parts of Wyoming in great ways and I hope I can help a little bit."
- Jim Roscoe

"With deep family ties to this valley and over two decades working here professionally, I understand how vital it is to protect what makes this place special. Joining the Jackson Hole Land Trust is an opportunity to help safeguard the landscapes, ecosystems, and character that make this region truly unique."
- John Stennis

What We Do

Our mission is to protect and steward Northwest Wyoming landscapes for current and future generations.

We envision a legacy of resilient open spaces, wildlife habitat, working lands, and community places, forever protected across Northwest Wyoming.

Conservation

We are committed to enduring conservation that ensures the ecological integrity of the open space, wildlife habitat, working lands, and community places we protect. Our conservation easements are in perpetuity, supporting the economic health and cultural identity of Northwest Wyoming.

Community

We strive to be an inclusive organization that works with all communities in Northwest Wyoming. We aim to listen and respond to the full diversity of community voices.

Collaboration

Collaboration and partnerships are central to our work. We approach our work understanding that successful, durable collaborations are built on trust and respect. We rely on partnerships with landowners, nonprofits, funders, and agencies to inform and successfully carry out our work.

| Where We Work

Northwest Wyoming

The Jackson Hole Land Trust is committed to conservation connectivity, concentrating efforts across four key counties: Fremont, Park, Sublette, and Teton. This work area roughly spans the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem, and reflects a network of essential private lands, stewarded by the people of Wyoming for generations.

Wild Partnerships

"Wildlife don't know jurisdictions; they do know the landscapes that sustain them. Thanks to the Jackson Hole Land Trust, those essential places are permanently protected. At Grand Teton National Park, we deeply appreciate this partnership that supports our iconic wildlife."

Wildlife Habitat

In a state where ungulates outnumber people, protecting wildlife habitat is vital to sustaining Wyoming's way of life and wild character. While our iconic public lands provide the acreage many of these species need to thrive, it's the combination of public and conserved private lands that ensure our wildlife do not lose the connectivity essential to their migrations, from elk and pronghorn to shorebirds and songbirds.

Rest Stops to Protect

"It is our family's great pleasure to team up with the JHLT to provide permanent protection for a truly unique part of Wyoming. Protecting critical migration routes and rest stops for animals is a particularly high priority for us. The JHLT's highly professional team has been a great partner."

Sage Creek Wetlands

Sage Creek Wetlands is a sanctuary for songbirds and shorebirds like the sandhill crane. Protection and active enhancement projects ensure this property will remain a boon to the Park County region's iconic wildlife forever.

Agricultural Heritage

Conservation easements are an important tool for keeping land in agriculture. As pressure to subdivide continues to increase, partnering with farming and ranching families offers a win-win alternative that maintains Northwest Wyoming’s agricultural land base, protects local food systems, and safeguards a way of life.

| Supporter Spotlight

Open Space to Enjoy

“It’s important for this valley to remain open not only for wildlife and for agriculture but also for people to enjoy. We wanted to guarantee it stayed in agriculture. The riverfront, views, and wildlife make it vulnerable to subdivision.”

- Mark and Jamie Ohl, Ole Wiley Conservation Easement

Boulder Draw Conservation Easement
Arnie Brokling

| New Easement

Boulder Draw

Boulder Draw carries an agricultural legacy, complete with two historic beaver slides used to stack hay since the early 1900s. Today, the easement ensures this property will continue to sustain cattle operations and the wildlife that depend on the very same open space in the Boulder Valley.

Ole Wiley

The Ole Wiley Conservation Easement protects a barley and hay farm along the South Fork of the Shoshone River outside of Cody. Particularly sensitive to development, the easement will ensure this riverfront open space stays in agriculture.

Ecosystem Balance

“Wildlife conservation safeguards the integrity of the ecosystems and their predator-prey balance. After 50 years in conservation, I’ve seen that the Greater Yellowstone ecosystem — the largest intact temperate ecosystem — depends on protected, connected habitats. When natural ecosystems stay healthy, so does our world, for all species.”

- Meredith Taylor, Wind River Rookery Conservation Easement

| Conservation Values

Community Spaces

Community open spaces like R Park and the Greenspace on the Block offer places for connection, discovery, and renewal. Just as these natural gathering spots bring people together, community conservation unites us around a shared purpose: protecting the places we love for everyone, today and for generations to come.

Unique and Vital

"We are big believers in public space for all, and we love seeing the families at R Park. We think it is a unique and vital place in our community, with safe, welcoming water access, along with convenient parking and bus accessibility."

- Ann-Marie and John Halsted, The Primrose Foundation

| New Project

Munger Mountain

Teton County began its 35-year conservation lease on the Munger Mountain State Trust Land parcel, which will raise needed funds for public education. The JHLT played a leading role in this collaborative effort and will continue to do so, partnering with Friends of Munger Mountain, Friends of Pathways, and Teton County Parks & Recreation to implement a weed management plan and develop the trail system, while protecting the serenity and wildlife habitat of the Munger Mountain area.

| Capital Campaign Improvements

R Park 10-Year

The JHLT celebrated 10 years of R Park with a successful campaign to ensure this beloved community open space remains safe, welcoming, and full of life for the next 10 years and beyond. From infrastructure improvements to new interpretive signage and native plantings, to love R Park is to care for it.

Leave a Legacy

“We independently traveled to Jackson when we were in college, and fell in love. Our shared love of the Tetons, Wind River Mountains, backpacking, and trout certainly played a part in the decision to spend our lives together! We bought a home in Jackson and have enjoyed it throughout our lives. We support the JHLT in the hope that future generations may experience the majestic beauty, open space, and wildlife we have had the privilege to cherish.”

- Kathy Monk and Jim Gorko, Legacy Society Members
